The Great Guns of the Monitor Arkansas Lifted from Her Turrets-Navy Yard Barge Rams the Barge of the Admiral.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NORFOLK, VA., August 6.-There was a session of the Inland Waterway Board ere to-day. The board consists of the following officers, appointed by the gov ernment: Col. J. B. Guinn, of Savannah; Col. J. C. Allen, of Washington, and Cap-tain E. E. Winslow, of Norfolk, These are all engineers, and they are appointed to examine the proposed water route from Beaufort, N. C., to Norfolk, and repor the result of their investigations to the chief engineers of the United States chief engineers of the United States army.

They received the report compiled here for Captain W. R. Mayo, president of the Chamber of Commerce, stating the commercial advantages of the inland waterway.

WIRELESS STATION.

Wireless telegraphy will soon be tried at the navy yard. The top section of the two hundred foot mast was placed to-day, and as soon as the apparatus arrives the connection by wireless telegraph will be established with Washington, Annapolis, Capes Henry and Hathan

Ferns.

Removal of the great gums and the armor plates from the turrets of the monitor Arkansas began to-day. The guns were lashed to a 120 ton crane and lifted to the shore preparatory to replacing the rollers, so as to allow the guns to be fired without disiedging the turrets when they shall have been revisioned.

State Withers, a white woman, was found this morning in a dive suffering from delerium tremens. She was sent to the hospital by the police to revive sufficiently to go to the Crittendon Home. Ehe was in a pitiable condition of physical states where the state of the critical states are sufficiently to go to the Crittendon Home. RAMMED THE BARGE.

Placett barge No. 22, of the navy yard, rammed the barge of Admiral Harring-ton to-day, being forced into the slip by the tide. Fireman Pettingill, of the ad-the tide. The was thrown against the the tide. Fireman Pettingili, of the ad-miral's barge, was thrown against the boiler and cut, but no other damage was Guy Johnson was found guilty this afternoon by jury in the Corporation Court of selling liquor to minors. He is the bar-keeper at the small vaudeville theatre of James M. Barton, where liquor is sold. The result, according to the rule already established under the Mann law will be that the license of Barton will be revoked. As the license costs 56%, the tax on the liquor dealer who incurs the penalty is severe.

of theatre-going and dancing the Conference of Winchester's leading business men, and after examining a petition signed by the most responsible people of the community, he expressed himself as favorably impressed by the attempt to have pardoned one Janes H. Castleman, who was sent from here to prison four years ago.

Castleman was adjudged guilty of criminal intimacy with his daughter and was given a term of ten years. It is now believed that the man was the victim of a conspiracy. The petition for his release was signed by Proscuting Attorney, R. E. Byrd, the first one he has signed in the twenty years that he has held that office.

THE TARANTULA.

William K. Vanderbilt's speedy little turbine yacht Tarantula, which arrived here yesterday from London, via Bermuda, is having her bollers cleaned out. She will probably leave to-morrow, after taking coal and water.

The Tarantula is a remrakable little craft. She can carry coal and water enough for one day if she runs under full steam, so she will have to proceed up the coast slowly, using only one boiler. She is 152 feet long, and her beam is 15.7. Her net tonnage is $2. She has two boilers, two funnels and two masts. The little vessel has three shafts, and each shaft has two propellers. She can make twenty-six knots, or nearly thirty-miles an hour. She is built entirely for speed, and the accommodations aboard are very poor.

It was reported that Vanderbilt would come here and make the trip to New York on the boat, but the captain says that this is not true.

Street Superintendent Monroe Morris, who was suspended for thirty days by the Mayor, resumed the dutles of his office this morning.

She came to Staunton several weeks ago from Miller's School to spend the summer for her health and on thrae occasions she tried to throw herself in front of the Staunton street cars, but was folled on every occasion. Finally, on July 30, she was taken to the Western State Hospital, where several days ago she tried to choke herself with a cord. To-day directly after dinner she succeed in slipping away from the guards, ran into a room and tied a hangkerchief around her neck, the other end of which she tied to a window guard, and threw herself forward, strangling to death. She was in the Infirmary ward and a close watch had been kept on her ever since she has been confined in the hospotal. Hers was a case of suicidal mania and in such cases patients are under strict guard. At the coroner's inquiry, no blame was attached to the authorities. She was about 42 years of age.

PREPARING TO DIE.

Anderson Finch and Dock Bacon, the two negroes in jail in this city awaiting execution for the attempted criminal assault on Mrs. Geoghegan at Boydton, Va., have professed religion under Rev. Perrell (colored), pastor of the Baptist Temple on Hight Street. Ferrell visited the prisoners last evening. Both have professed conversion, and both say they are ready to die, knowing that they will soon enter the "atmosphere of heaven."

The preacher prayed and sang with the condemned men for some time, and will visit them regularly until the day of execution. They desire a preacher to go with them upon the scaffold, and he has promised to do so. Ferrell last evening asked the men why they committed the rime. Both of them say they are innocent and know nothing about it.
